The Pragmatic Paradigm

The pragmatic paradigm as a set of beliefs, illustrated above, arose as a single paradigm response to the debate surrounding the “ paradigm wars ” and the emergence of mixed methods and mixed models approaches. It is pluralistic based on a rejection of the forced choice between post positivism and constructivism (Creswell 2003).

The pragmatic paradigm refers to a worldview that focuses on “ what works ” rather than what might be considered absolutely and objectively “ true ” or “ real. ” . Early pragmatists rejected the idea that social inquiry using a single scientific method could access truths regarding the real world. These pragmatists declared that truth could be judged by its consequences.

Pragmatism Paradigm, has anyone adopted it in his/her thesis?

The book introduces pragmatic constructivism as a paradigm for understanding actors ' construction of functioning practice and for developing methods and concepts for managing and observing that practice. The book explores, understands and theorises organisational practices as constructed through the activities of all organisational actors. Actors always act under presumptions of a specific actor-world-relation which they continuously construct, adjust and reconstruct in light of new ...
