Ren é Descartes and the Fly on the Ceiling The coordinate system we commonly use is called the Cartesian system, after the French mathematician Ren é Descartes (1596-1650), who developed it in the 17th century. Legend has it that Descartes, who liked to stay in bed until late, was watching a fly on the ceiling from his bed.

A very famous mathematician called Rene Descartes lay in bed one night. As he lay there, he looked up at the ceiling in his bedroom. He noticed a fly was asleep on the ceiling. Descartes, being a mathematician wondered if he could figure out a way of stating where exactly the fly was on the ceiling.

The spider is 1 foot below the ceiling and horizontally centred on one 12 × 12 wall. The fly is 1 foot above the floor and horizontally centred on the opposite wall. The problem is to find the minimum distance the spider must crawl along the walls, ceiling and/or floor to reach the fly, which remains stationary.
