Key assumptions of postmodernism. Postmodernists claim that contemporary western societies have moved from the modern to the postmodern age. Postmodernity is characterised by an unstable, fragmented, media saturated global village, where we define ourselves by what we consume. For postmodernists, society today is not a continuation of modernity but a fundamental break from it.

Toward a Postmodern Theory of Law*. The work of a lawyer is commonly understood to consist of searching for and locating in the codes and laws the appropriate disposition to solve a case and apply the legal consequences anticipated by the norm to the situation in controversy. To date, the philosophy of law produced and taught at universities in Venezuela and the rest of the world corresponds to that conceptualization.

Although the loss of certainty in the age of postmodernism is questioning knowledge production in general, the emerging discourse of lifelong learning demands a different theory of adult learning in particular. This article aims to offer a conceptual tool for describing learning in adulthood in terms of postmodern and lifelong learning conditions. It approaches the problem from the images of learning and learner that adult education scholarship has produced and identifies that adult learning ...
